

ISLAND'S 3 WIDOWS.

Each Claimed the Dead Coney Island Manager's Body.

Swipes the Newsboy Prevented a First Fight Over the Corpse.

His Brother and Sister Finally Secured It and Buried It.

CONEY ISLAND, N. Y., April 26.—The latest sensational gossip among the people of reformed Coney Island, is the death of Billy Island, a theatrical and circus manager, who died here Sunday night of pneumonia.

His body has been the bone of contention between three women, each of whom claimed to be his widow, while gossip says that he had four others of the same kind within ten miles of here who have not yet shown up.

Besides the alleged widows, there have been here the dead man's father, a wealthy manufacturer near Meriden, Conn.; his brother, Charles Island, about to become a priest, and a sister, all to claim the body and take it home for burial.

The father three arrived Tuesday, but when Billy's father came in contact with the alleged widows, he was told that they were his sister, however, remained, and yesterday a quiet funeral was held over the body at the New York Club Hotel, of which the deceased was part owner.

The body was placed in the cemetery at Gravesend, where it will remain until this fall. Then the scandalous relatives will have the body taken to Meriden and interred there in the family vault.

Island attended the Siddons-Lieber affair in New York a week ago. He caught cold, and pneumonia resulted. Dr. Will attended him during the last hours of his illness.

Nellie, a concert-hall singer, whose name is unknown here, lived with Island and claimed to be his wife. She and Swipes the Newsboy were the only ones present at the funeral.

Monday night, "Florence Smith," who is said to be a very respectable woman of Brooklyn, came here and claimed to be Island's widow.

Island was buried between "Florence Smith" and "Nellie," which resulted in the following morning a quarrel, with a woman half twenty years old, who also claimed to be his widow, and who, Feb. 1, 1893, and that she lived in Flatbush, arrived on the scene. She said she was married to Island at the New York Club Hotel, where Island's body was.

There they met Nellie, the concert hall singer. Swipes the Newsboy was on guard at the door, and the woman saw the new claimant a worthy war, which was not allowed.

Only the intervention of Swipes, the Newsboy prevented a flat fight. He bodily pushed the woman out of the door and locked the corpse securely in.

Though the three women claimed to be widows of Island, the latter positively declared that she possessed a certificate of marriage was Annie, the daughter of the deceased, who is now staying at Hunt's Highland house.

Eddie Lieber, the pugilist, who, with Swipes the Newsboy, assisted at the funeral, said that he had seen a woman, who he said was married to Island, and that she was a very respectable woman of Brooklyn, came here and claimed to be Island's widow.

FOUND HIM OUT AT A FUNERAL.

Mr. Springer Asserts Her Husband Has Another Wife.

While Burying Her Child the Other Mrs. Springer Appeared.

George Springer was held in the Ewen Street Court, Williamsburg, today on a charge of bigamy, preferred by Minnie Springster, to whom he was married in 1888, when at the time he had another wife living.

Springster, according to the story told by the complainant, has been living a double life successfully for five years. He told the woman that he was a travelling agent, and this took him out of the city a good part of the time. It now appears that he spent this time with his wife, Kate Keller-Springster, who lived at 300 Ely Street.

At both places he gave his name as Springer, but at Ely Street he was known as Julius.

Mrs. Minnie Springer had one child, but it died shortly before Easter, and the funeral occurred Easter Monday. Among the mourners was a woman, who looked at the mother in surprise and finally said to her:

"There must be some mistake here. That man over there is Mr. Springer, and you are not his wife."

Mrs. Springer protested that she was. The two women argued the matter, and the funeral simply because she had seen the funeral notice in the paper and thought it was the child of her friend, Kate Springer.

On the way back from the cemetery, Mrs. Springer told her husband of her conduct and he answered that the charges were all false and he would not attend to her. She then left him and he went away, leaving his wife heartbroken and penniless.

The woman has a good deal of determination, however, and she decided she would find her husband. After several weeks she located him at 29 Ely Street, and Springer was arrested this morning by Officer Carroll. He had nothing to say when arraigned in court.

SALTER NOT OF DEFENSE.

His Wife Says He Has Desecrated Her for Another Ducky Belle.

The trial of the suit of Josephine H. Salter against William E. Salter, who, Mrs. Salter declares, is a "beautiful" tonorial artist, for absolute divorce, was heard before Judge Gildersleeve in the Superior Court today. Both are Afro-Americans.

Mrs. Salter, who wore a more silken gown, said they were married in 1875, in Thompson Street, and went to live at Westbury Station, L. I. Her husband had a barber shop on Bleeker Street, but Mrs. Salter did not remember the number. About two years ago Salter, she said, abandoned her for another, Maggie Smith, with whom he has been living since.

She said she had moved his barber shop up there, too, and they had a baby to make their household complete. William Allen, William Walker and Walter Adams corroborated Mrs. Salter's story. There was no defense. Judge Gildersleeve reserved decision.

EVA GROEN CAUGHT.

Detectives Found Her Hiding Under a Quantity of Clothing.

Eva Groen was held in the Jefferson Market Police Court today for examination on a charge of keeping a disorderly house at 126 West Twenty-sixth Street.

The first matrimonial venture after leaving Meriden, is said to have been with Little Elmer, a young man, who, Greenpoint, L. I., but he left her shortly afterwards.

The next was a Mrs. Kelly, not very old, but a widow with six children. The New York Times reported that she was married to him in 1891, is the seventh wife of the late, who eloped with him and has never since been reconciled to her family.

The young woman has led a precarious existence ever since. Not long ago she buried a child in Flatbush Cemetery, as the result of a miscarriage.

An "Evening World" reporter called on Mrs. Island No. 7 at the Highland House Hotel, Flatbush, and said:

"I was the only wife and am now the only widow of Billy Island. I have a certificate at Flatbush to prove my claim."

It is said that he has been married to seven other coming from Meriden. It is true in part, but his true wife was Emma.

He told me that he was divorced from the first woman he married in Meriden, but had a letter from his sister and she says that it is true.

Mrs. Island says that Billy had no money and was backed in every undertaking by Eddie Lieber.

Mrs. Gertrude Kelly this morning applied to Judge Osborne, in the City Court, Brooklyn, for a bill of particulars in the suit brought by her husband, John A. Kelly, for absolute divorce.

The plaintiff claims that Mrs. Kelly conducted herself improperly with Geo. Coble during February and March, 1893, and at various other times with James McQuinn. Other acts of misconduct are alleged, but Mrs. Kelly has named the other co-respondents nor the date or place of the alleged offenses.

Decision was reserved.

Coroner Creamer, of Williamsburg, is investigating the case of Frederic Hughes Lloyd, who died in an ambulance of the Homeopathic Hospital yesterday, while on his way from the Clifton place, Brooklyn, to the hospital on Cumberland Street.

The house at 291 Clifton place is occupied by Peter Fitzharris, a trained nurse. He says he has known Lloyd only a fortnight. He became acquainted in a casual way with Lloyd, who was an inmate of the house for but one night.

Tuesday he called there, and after a short stay he remained all night. In the morning he was so ill that Fitzharris carried him to the hospital. Lloyd complained of trouble with his throat.

Fitzharris says that Lloyd was an inveterate cigarette smoker, and she believes that nicotine poisoning was the cause of his death.

About two weeks ago Lloyd was arrested on a charge of kidnapping Louis Kuntz, a sixteen years old, from the orphan asylum. His cousin, Della Hughes, who is the wife of J. J. Van Hook, New York, claims that she desired to adopt the child as a companion.

In addition to Capt. William R. Kennedy and a crew of seventeen, the captain's wife and child were on board. Mr. Parker was asked whether it was not likely that the vessel was a brig, and he said it was not.
